

COMPASSIONATE COMMUNITIES

Palliative care encourages people to stop treatments aimed at curing their illness.

False

The aim of palliative care is to help people to have a good quality of life by managing physical symptoms such as pain and offering emotional, spiritual and psychological support. It is person-focused with the aim of helping a person better understand their treatment options so that people are able to make informed choices about their care.